ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A conference call is established upon dialing an access number and providing a valid pin number, whereby an owner can dynamically add additional parties to the conference call. Additional parties are added to the conference call by 5   the owner entering a code and dialing a destination number. The owner of the conference can return to a conference call when there is no connection with the destination number by entering a reject code. The owner of the conference can return to a conference with a dialed party when there is a connection with the destination number by entering an accept code.

10